

Your Body Was Trying to Tell You

Somatic Wisdom as God-Given Discernment

"Your bodies are temples of the Holy Spirit." — 1 Corinthians 6:19

KEY CONCEPTS

1 The body speaks before the mind catches up

Your nervous system processes threat information faster than your conscious mind. Before you think 'something is wrong,' your body has already braced, frozen, or gone into alert. These signals are not anxiety disorders or overreactions. They are accurate data.

2 What a trauma-conditioned body does

When you've been in chronic stress, your body learns to be constantly scanning for danger. Tight jaw. Shallow breath. Hypervigilance. Startling easily. Exhaustion. These are not personality traits — they are your body carrying unprocessed threat. You can learn to release them.

3 Honoring your body is honoring God

1 Corinthians 6:19 says your body is a temple of the Holy Spirit. That means what happens in your body matters to God. Healing the body is not separate from spiritual healing — it is part of it. Learning to listen to your body is learning to listen to a wisdom God placed within you.

THIS WEEK'S PRACTICE

Body check-in: Sit quietly for 60 seconds. Starting at your feet, slowly scan upward. Where do you notice tension, heaviness, numbness, or ease? Write down three things you notice — without trying to change them.

YOUR REFLECTION

'My body is a temple and it is wise. I am learning to listen to what it has been trying to tell me.'
